GTM-Advanced Structures Secures Growth Financing

The Hague, the Netherlands, July 17, 2025 – GTM-Advanced Structures, a European leader in satellite solar array innovation, has successfully secured growth financing provided by the Dutch investment firm Homerun Capital Management.

This strategic investment will enable GTM-Advanced Structures to expand its high-tech facility in the Hague, further develop its innovative product portfolio and strengthen its role in key European satellite programs. In addition, Michiel van Eijck – trusted advisor of GTM-Advanced Structures – will join the management team. The company, headquartered in the Netherlands, is recognized for its expertise in the development, engineering, and manufacturing of high-performance components, for aerospace applications, focussing on solar arrays.

"We are excited to partner with Homerun Capital Management and Michiel at this pivotal stage of our growth", said Jan Willem Gunnink, CEO of GTM-Advanced Structures. "This funding confirms strong confidence in our technology, strategy and team. It allows us to scale up our operations, invest in new technologies and better serve our customers in the aerospace industry. We are proud to contribute to Europe's space ambitions with reliable, home-grown solutions."

Felix Guépin of Homerun Capital Management commented: "GTM-Advanced Structures has demonstrated remarkable innovation and technical leadership in aerospace structures".

The financing marks a significant milestone in GTM-Advanced Structures' growth trajectory and underscores the increasing interest of Dutch investors in supporting innovative, high-potential technology companies.
